Mr. Reagan told a nationwide relevision andience that naming a Supreme Court justice is the most swessine appointment a president can make because the high court can make because the high court leaves "footprints on the sands of time." The president recalled that during his campaign he made a commitment to appoint the most qualified woman he could find. - "That is not to say I would ap-point a woman merely to do so," he added. "That would not be fair to scourd not to future genera-

From Agency Dispatches LIVERPOOL - Rampaging youths burned a warehouse and looted a supermarket in a third successive night of violence in Liverpool, and police said that by early Tuesday 75 persons had been arrested.

But a force of 2,000 police, many brought into the city from nearby towns, managed to prevent the sporadic clashes from turning, into another night of full-scale rioting and looting. Security forces did not use tear gas, as they did on Sunday for the first time in a riot in England. No gasoline bombs were hurled at po-lice, who had asked filling stations to close to deny fuel to rioters.

The trouble was again coefined to Toxteth, the ran-down inner-city area with a high proportion of black residents that was the scene on Saturday and Sunday of some of the worst rioting ever in Britain.

Poland Faces Threat of Two New Strikes

WARSAW - Polish dockworkers and airline employees an-nounced strikes Tuesday, and miners threatened to cut coal produc-tion in half, opening the way for new labor unrest just a week be-fore a crucial Communist Party

The threat of new strikes, the first in more than twn months, was made two days after Soviet For-eign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left Warsaw after meeting with Polish Communist Party leaders. Officials of the trade union Sobdarity said talks between dockworkers and the government would be held at the behest of the Rnman Catholic Church.

Solidarity officials said dockworkers in all major Polish ports, including Gdansk, where Solidar-ity was formed last August, planned a one-hour warning strike Wednesday morning.

Dispute Over Conditions

The dispute centers on wage de-mands and dockworkers' charges that the government has failed to implement an agreement to improve working conditions. Union sources said failure to reach an agreement could lead to further strikes,

A strike of any length in Po-land's ports could stall vital ship-ments of food and other goods and further curtail exports of coal, an essential hard-currency earner, observers said.

The Gdansk port is so neglected that one has to work as in an-cient times," said a dockworker in interview over Polish radio. "The government should take care of such hard-working groups,"

Ninety-nine percent of the Soli-darity employees at the Polish gov-ernment airline LOT voted in favor nf a four-hour warning strike Thursday in a dispute over the naming of a new airline director, a union spokesman said. _ · --- aged struggle there to a political conclusion.

At last month's gathering of the Organization of African Unity in Narobi, the monarch offered to hold a "controlled referendum" in the Western Sahara, where Moroc-can troops have been fighting the Algerian-backed Polisario guerrillas since 1975.

By seemingly embracing the rec-ommendation of an OAU commit-tee, which had called for a ceasefire and a referendum, King Has-san prevented the Polisario's Saharan Arab Democratic Repubhe from being scated as a member nation. He also gained time for Morecco to consolidate its hold on the former Spanish colony.

But few well-placed Moroccan or Western diplomats here believe the king intends allowing a referendum that would challenge Marocco's long-standing claim to the phosphato-laden wasteland. Morocco annexed the northern two-thirds of the territory when colonial Spain pulled out in 1975, and took over the remainder when Mauritania, battered by Polisario attacks, renounced its claim four years later.

Rioting May Change Role of U.K. Police

The Associated Press

LONDON - The rioting that made a smoldering wreck of Liver-pool's Toxteth district may prove to be a crossroad for England's bobbies, hundreds of whom were injured in the violence.

Unlike his elaborately trained and riot-equipped counterparts in other Western countries, the English policeman is generally unused to and unprepared for the kind of moh ferocity that struck in Liverpool.

The average bobby goes into battle protected only by a rein-forced version of his famous forced domed hat and a light shield made of plastic. He carries no sidearm.

Until the outbreaks of rioting in Liverpool's Toxteth and London's Southall district over the weekend and the vinlence three months ago in South London's Brixton area, most saw no need for riot equipment

'Gordon's Army" was annihilated by the regular army, which killed or wounded 450 people in the process. In the case of Liverpool, it was the police who got the worst of it.

In three days of violence in the economically distressed city, more than 200 policemen were injured. By contrast, a few dozen of the young rioters were hurt none of them seriously. In all, more than 300 policemen and civilians were injured in the Liverpool and Southall rinting.

The youths, who apparently saw police as part of a hated order dooming them to poverty and boredom, attacked with garden spades, bricks, bottles, firebombs, pieces of pipe, rocks and vehicles used as battering rams. Many po-licemen were kicked and beaten after they had fallen. "Some will never work again." said Jim Jar-dine, head of the Police Federaníon. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Airline employees were on strike alert Tuesday. They wore red-and-white armbands and displayed posters listing their grievances, a union spokesman said. Another protest developed in the Silesian coalfields, where miners threatened to cut coal producunn unless food supplies were "no worse than in other places in the country," a Solidarity spokesman

The miners complain that they have rationing cards but nothing to buy with them. They gave an firm date to begin cutting coal output, which has already been reduced by the shorter working hours won during strikes last Sep-tember and the lack of spare parts for machines.

Neither Solidarity nor the official sources could estimate how many miners or pits were involved, hut the area is said to produce most of Poland's coal.

New York Times Service WARSAW — Bishop Jozef Glemp of Warmia, named Tuesday by Pope John Paul II as the primate of Poland, said he would continue the policies of dialogue and cooperation with both the government and the Solidarity trade union that were begun by his predecessor, the late Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski.

"I am convinced I must fallow the road laid out by Cardinal Wyszynski." he said in an inter-view. "The work of the primate is not political, it's pastoral. But if we in the church are to do our duty, we must not remain above social issues.

'If the Solidarity and other social movements want to follow the truth and the light, we will give them our protection. It's in line with the proper role of the church," he said.

Bishop Glemp, 52, is a specialist in both canon and civil law. He said he believed in working closely with the Conference of Bishops. Cardinal Wyszynski, who led the church with a commanding authority far mare than three decades, had a reputation as something of an autocrat.

Tanaka to Insist on Study Of U.S. Technology Sale

By Sam Jameson

Los Angeles Times Service TOKYO - Rokusuke Tanaka, Japan's minister of international trade and industry, said Tuesday he would insist that the Japanese government make a careful study before deciding whether to provide the United States with electronics and laser technology for use in weapons development.

Mr. Tanaka's statement, made during an appearance at Japan's national press club, contradicted an earlier statement by Kiichi Mi-yazawa, the chief Cabinet secretary, who had indicated that Japan would respond favorably to the U.S. request.

The trade and industry minister ruled out a "quick response" to the request, which was made officially

June 29 by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger to Joji Omura, the Japanese Defense Agency director, at a meeting in Washington. Mr. Tanaka left the door open to possible approval lat-er by saying that he thought "it is all right to study the request," add-ing, "I am not convinced yet," Mr. Tanaka cited Japan's stand-speak with a single voice on foreign policy. "The consequence is harmful to the president and to the national interest," a senior Reagan appointee outside the White House said Monday. "Diplomats in town are wondering who they should be talking to these days."

Conflict Minimized

Officially, the White House is minimizing any conflict, saying that the Kirkpatrick affair has been patched over and that the ad-ministration's foreign-policy team is working smoothly. Mr. Haig and Mrs. Kirkpatrick have met private-ly at the State Department and re-portedly patched up differences over her role in UN approval of the U.S.-backed resolution condemning Israel for its bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor.

Lock of Familiarity

But there are others who say that the foreign-policy process re-mains the Reagan administration's most severe problem. Some of the difficulty would seem to be Mr. Reagan's own formulations and his relative lack of familiarity with foreign policy compared to domestic issues.

European Court Closes Loophole That 'Butter Ships' Sail Through

The Associated Press

BRUSSELS -- The European Court of Justice closed a legal loophole on Tuesday that permitted grocery stores aboard ships outside the 12-mile limit to sell food at cut-rate prices.

The court, acting on a complaint brought by retail grocers in Kiel, West Germany, said the operators of so-called "butter ships" were violating European Economic Community tax laws. The butter ships, now operating off the Netherlands and West Germany, sell butter, cheese, meat, wine and other farm goods at world prices. These are substantially lower than EEC prices, which are boosted by agriculture subsidies designed to help the 10-nation community's 8.5 million farmers.

The court said the EEC violated its own laws when it passed a regulation in 1977 permitting buyers on such ships to purchase a kilogram each of butter, cheese and meat, two liters of wine and two kilograms of other agriculture products. An EEC Commission report estimated on Tuesday that lower sales caused about $7.2

million in losses to the EEC budget a year. Tuesday's ruling is not binding on operators of the so-called butter ships, but it provides a basis for decisions by West German courts. Under EEC procedures, the Kiel grocers can now go to court in West Germany for an order banning the shipboard sales. Grocers in the Netherlands who object to the offshore competition can also ask Dutch courts to apply the EEC court ruling.

The success of the gas in restoring a semblance of order in Toxteth led immediately to calls in the force and in Parliament for more riot gear to enable the bobby to fight force with force.

Use of the plastic rounds in Northern Ireland has caused deaths and serious injuries and has been a particularly controversial aspect of riot control in the violence accompanying the Maze prison bunger strike.

gie that the Reagan forces can no longer count on all the swing Democratic votes that helped carry the resident's narrow victory on the acknowledge that they have re-sponded belatedly to the adminisinition's vigorous promotion of its onomic program and must now gain higher visibility for their own tax package.

"We've been stumbling," Rep. Rostenkowski conceded in a tele-phone interview, "but we've got to huild a case for our tax cuts. I honestly believe the president has lost 18 or 19 of those guys who went with him on the budget votes. 1 honestly think the tax thing is going to be a cliffhanger and we'll beat him narrowly on the individual rate cuts."

But like other Democratic leaders, Rep. Rostenkowski acknowledged that even with redoubled efforts, the Democrats face an uphill struggle against a popular presi-

"We feel we were totally ineffective in getting our message across on the budget," said Rep. Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri, a deputy House Democratic whip and head of the party's economic task force. To have a better chance on the To have a better chance on the budget we've got to get our mes-sage out, so we're trying to get newspapers and major TV outlets in the major markets to run the facts on the actual impact of the two tax-cut programs."

Several Democrats say they are outgunned by an administration that has proved its ability to mo-bilize a political network of support around the country, to generate heavy popular pressures on behalf of the president's economic program in the districts of wavering members of Congress, and then to use Mr. Reagan himself to arouse public opinion and cajole a handful of fence-sitters with amiable personal persuasion or attractive political bargains.

Democratic Tax Plan

The heart of the Democratic strategy to win popular appeal and thereby woo back the support of Southern Democratie conservatives who have voted with the president on the budget is a reduction in individual income tax rates tilted toward middle-income and lower-income taxpayers as well as corporate rate reductions and one-year depreciation write-offs that offer more relief to small husiness than the president's package. The Democrats cuntend that their bill will provide a higger tax cut to middle-class Americans "while the president's plan is skewed to give the most relief to the very rich," as Rep. Gephardt put it. The Republicans say that their plan most benefits those who pay the most taxes. "Most of the Southern conservative Democrats are like me --- they look at these things from the point of view of small business, small farmers and middle-income taxpayers," said Rep. Kenneth L. Holland, a South Carolina Demo-crat who voted for the presiden's hudget package but is now promoting the Democratic tax package. "We represent districts where the vast majority of people are low- and middle-income."

By Democratic calculations, for example, a family of four with an annual income of $30,000 would get a tax cut in 1982 of $687 under the Democratic bill and $499 under the Reagan plan, and all those earning under $70,000 annually would get a larger cut from the Democratic bill than from the Republican bill. The Democratic package also offers reductions in corporate tax rates and a one-year extention for capital expenditures compared to a multiple-year set of depreciation write-offs for busi-ness in the Reagan plan.

Strategy Session Due

The Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee will hold a caucus on Wednesday to firm up their strategy, and the full committee will begin its markup of the tax bill on Thursday with the hope of delivering a bill to the floor by the last week of July.

The administration, fearful that the Democrats are deliberately dawdling, is putting pressure on the House Democratic leadership to complete work on the tax legis-lation by Aug. 1, as it contends was originally promised by legisla-tive leaders of both parties in both houses. The White House fear is that if work on the tax hill is not completed by early August, the tax. battle will drag on into the fall, making any tax eut in 1981 impractical because the Internal Revenue Service will not have time to develop the withholding tables for employers.

To speed the pace, the adminis-tration wants the Senate to act first, passing the bill already ap-proved by the Finance Committee and backed by the White House. House Republicans then would offer the same bill as a substitute for the Democratic bill. If the Republican version passed, it could then go to the president for signing by Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Media Campaign

For all the legislative maneuvering, what is new in the Democratie tactics is the effort to reach beyond Congress to the public. Heretofore, Democratic veterans such as Rep. Rostenkowski, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, the House speaker, and Rep. James C. Wright Jr. of Texas, the majority leader, have concen-trated more on legislative politics on which they have built their ca-reers and their past victories, and have shied away from the mass-media politics that Mr. Reagan has exploited so artfully.

Although the Democrats concede that they have no single figure to match the president's skills as a communicator, they are pushing for more television appearances as well as gearing up their own speaking teams to match the expected Republican effort.

Anticipating a major television speech from Mr. Reagan to push for his tax program, Rep. O'Neill, along with Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the Senate minority leader, and Charles T. Mannatt, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, have written to

Over the next 25 years, the trustees reported, all Medicare income will fall an average of $14 billion to $17 billion a year short of the combined cost of benefits, program administration and a sixmonth cushion in the trust fund. The trustees -- Donald T. Regan, secretary of the Treasury; Raymond J. Donovan, secretary of labor; and Richard S. saying it would exhaust its assets late next year. This prediction produced anoth-er round of statements from administration spokesmen, urging Congress to deal this year with both the short-term Social Security the Medicare report concluded. The trustees did not offer specific suggestions, however, as to how Congress could provide more fi-nancing for the Medicare program or reduce its cost.

If the Social Security or Medicare fund became insolvent, the government would be forced to discontinue paying benefits to those who were eligible. In either case, however, Congress would be expected to move in advance to prevent any such situation as socially and politically unacceptable.

A major question before the current Congress is whether it should attempt to solve at the same time both the immediate shortage, per-haps $50 billion from 1982 to 1986, and the long-range shortage, which is not expected until at least 2010.

Commissioner John A. Svahn of the Social Security Administration said Monday that the "worst case of all would be to delude ourselves into thinking we can get through the next few years with little or no action to restore the system to fiscal solvency and public confidence.

Congress Deepens Trims In U.S. Housing Subsidies

By Bernard Weinraub

New York Times Service WASHINGTON - Congress has quietly cut even more from the housing assistance program than was sought by President Reagan and also sharply increased vents for low-income tenants in a sub-stantial overhaul of urban aid. Mr. Reagan sought to fund 175,000 units of subsidized hous-ing, a reduction from the 260,000 proposed by former President Jinimy Carter. Although other social issues have dwarfed housing in the fund-ing cuts sought by the administraion and approved by Congress, the largest single savings will come in the housing area — over $54 billion over the next four years. Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, a New York Democrat, said the reductions were an affront to New York City, which he called the most import-ant city in the world. The other New York senator, Alfonse M. D'Amato, a Republican, supported the reductions.

Riots and Responsibilities

Politicians seeking honor as prophets will be quick to emphasize their favorite clearly defined, underlying explanation for the riots in Brixton, Toxteth and Southall. Indeed, some have already done so. For Enoch Powell it is race. For Michael Foot it is jobs. There is doubtless truth in both propositions, but both are also self-serving and each is wrong in its simplicity. Furthermore, both threaten to feed the flames rather than smother them.

Mr. Powell's view is the more troublesome of the two. His response to what may prove to be the most damaging period of civil strife in modern British history is to declare, "You've seen nothing yet." His tone may be short of gleeful anticipation, but it is certain-ly not lacking in self-congratulation. Didn't he warn, after all, that once the door was open wide to all these brown and black people — never mind that they were citizens of something called the British Commonwealth and used to be welcome in the mother country --- chaos was the inevitable outcome?

Yes, he did. But it was a self-fulfilling prophecy. A lack of leadership from those who should have provided it - including Mr.

Powell, successive prime ministers and virtu-ally the whole political class -- contributed to the likelihood of social disorder once economic conditions had deteriorated sufficiently. The British leadership never concentrated on finding ways to defuse the bomb.

There is little doubt, of course, that Mr. Foot is right when he says that unemployment is a major factor underlying the riots. With the jobless rate at 11 percent - the percentage is almost double that in the riot areas --- and with more than 2.5 million persons out of work, how could it not be? But the economic roots of the problem are much deeper than the current high unemployment rate resulting from Prime Minister Thatcher's deflationary policies. Britain has been lagging economically for decades, and for the majority of Britons the future does not seem very promising.

The trouble is that the solutions to Britain's economic problems are relatively longterm and the riots are here now. The outcry has already begun for a severe crackdown by the police.

America and Apartheid

"Opponents of Apartheid Arrested in South Africa," read the headline. It happened to run the other day, but it could have run at almost any time in the last five years. or earlier, and it is likely to run countless times in years to come. For the condition to which it alludes - white minority rule and resistance to it by blacks and some others defines reality in South Africa. Apartheid has proved to be hardy and, in its fundamentals, relatively impervious to reform. Resistance. too, is hardy and, in its fundamentals, relatively impervious to repression. The stage for a continuing confrontation is set.

In the United States, the Carter administration quickened the sense that morally and politically the United States had reason to make itself part of a South African solution. But the Carter years showed the difficulties of assembling a political base to sustain a long-term activist policy, and of devising tactics that would help the move toward political freedom with minimal violence.

This is the essential background to the policy being developed by the Reagan administration. It focuses on enlisting (white) South Africa's support to bring its longtime colony of Namibia to genuine independence. As a kind of quid pro quo, South Africa is being offered an attitude toward apartheid known as "constructive engagement." This suggests more carrot than stick.

Partly because of the change of administra-tions, there is a certain hull in the American debate on apartheid. Recently, however, a comprehensive report appeared that promises to become a rallying point for those who feel that the United States should identify more openly with forces of all races striving for equality.

"South Africa: Time Running Out" is a two-year study sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation and directed by the president of the Ford Foundation, Franklin A. Thomas. It argues that only by promoting equality can America deny openings to Moscow and serve its own varied interests well.

The report has been received in some quarters as a challenge to the Reagan policy, but this is too simple. True, it brings a moral urgency that is not much visible in Washington these days.

But it shares the prevailing premise that the American attitude, although important for this country, will be at most marginal in its effect in South Africa. For instance, the perennial question of whether to cut economic ties to punish Pretoria, or to preserve them to pry out progress, is, the report realistically concludes, "not much of a choice."

Yet it is the sort of choice Americans cannot dodge. "Time Running Out" will help them make it.

Africa's Qadhafi Show Plays On

NAIROBI — The score of African heads of state who stayed to the end of the summit meeting of the Organ-ization of African Unity had just left the city and endured the last handshake at the airport, perhaps casting a glance back at Nairobi's impressive skyline, when the forcign minister of Libya called a press conference to announce that his country had dominated the meeting. "I can say with humility that Libya was the

The Libyans, while Moamer Qadhafi stayed at home, came to the annual OAU summit as the center of several contro-versies. Qadhafi had heaped further insults on Sudan, whose president, Gaafar Nimeiri, tossed them right back — as when he said two months before the OAU meeting that Qadhafi "should be taken out, killed." Before his retirement, President Leopold Senghor of Senegal had castigated Qadhafi as a "racialist" bent on a mad course of unifying Saharan Africa in a radical, Moslem, pro-Soviet state with himself as head. bimself as head.

Full of Confidence

While his agents were busily dabbling in the internal doings of a dozen coun-tries, some of them hard-pressed to de-fend themselves, Qadhafi polled a royal double cross on Nigeria, the powerhouse arrows block African countries. The Liamong black African countries. The Libyan leader sent troops into Chad after the Nigerians, thinking they had struck a bargain with him, pressed successfully for the removal of French forces from that benighted country, which had seen 16 years of civil war. According to the political lore of modern Africa, Nigeria does not take such insults lightly.

This was the sort of heavy baggage the Libyans carried with them to Nairobi. No country ever carried it so lightly. They arrived full of confidence that

Only five countries objected — Ghana, the Ivory Coast, Gabon, Sudan and Egypt. Nigeria kept silent. Iranians Joke At the Storm

By Amir Taheri

DARIS - Ayatollah Khomeini's Islamic regime is the exact opposite of the shah's "Great Aryan Society," say bazaar jokers in Tehran. Why? Because under the shah people prayed in private and drank in public, now it's the other way around.

An arsenal of jokes has come into being to cope with an increasingly grim life resulting from a revolution that aroused so many hopes. Iranians, tradition-ally a fun-loving and irreverent people half of whose literature is in praise of good wine, pretty women and fine horses, are forced to put up with austenity, in which they are supposed to prepare for the hereafter.

Violent changes in social and political life have created a feeling of inscorrity. The very fact of being alive has new significance. In answer to "How are you?" one can hear. "Still alive." Dr. Mehdi Kianfar, a Tehran psychologist, says the average Iranian today is "a nervous wreck." "Outside villages and tribal areas, we have a neurotic nation," he says. This is perhaps one reason for a rise in the number of drug addicts, now estimated by authorities to total more than 2 million. Alcoholism is rampant, despite a ban on alcoholic drinks.

rampant, despite a ban on alconolic drinks. Powdered "dehydrated whiskey and volka" is im-ported from Japan, where several firms have spring up to cater for the Islamic market. The product is labeled "soup." And the state-owned breweries at Qazvin have resumed production, largely because the government needs the cash. Their vodka is supposed to be for non-Moslems only, but no one can make one where the trade stors.

sure where the trade stops. Women are segregated and forced into purdah, the old seclusion. They may not enter a government office without the obligatory head-cover. They are as signed separate places at restaurants and parks, and special scats on buses and Iran Air planes. Women have lost the right of divorce. The authorities have closed hundreds of girls' schools for lack of enough female teachers; girls cannot be taught by men.

Little Real Work Is Done

Men can now take four "full wives" and as many sighah (temporary wives) as they can afford. Few have chosen to take advantage of the concession. "We cannot even keep ourselves going," most men say. "Even one wife is too much to support." There certainly are other things to be sorry about,

There certainly are other things to be sorry about, among them unemployment that now exceeds 4 mil-lion, or 25 percent of the potential work force. Even those who still hold a job feel marginal, since little real work is done. Industry is running at under 10 percent of capacity, according to deposed President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr. All universities and centers of higher education have been closed for the last 15 months so that curri-cula and textbooks could be "Islamicized." A com-mittee charged with the task has just reported that Power is concentrated in the hands of the faqih (theologian). He acts for the Hid-den Imam who will return on Judgment Day.

Keeping Quiet Under Stress

Resping Unlet Under Stress The option of "master race" is replaced by "superi-or faith." The right to be different is rejected in the name of "uniformity in the eyes of God." The Islamic revolution was a profoundly popular movement that gave "the little people". a feeling of personal worth and significance. They were notongar, extras in a grandiose pageant of history. They felt they were changing history. They truly mattered. Some still leel this way, but of these most are ment bers of the regime's coercive arms — the Party of Allah and the Revolutionary Guards. Some ordinary people still believe that things will come right in the end. But the average Iranian today is a disillusioned nously, beginning to increase again. While the price was going up, consumption steadily fell. That reduced oil imports, strengthened the dollar and in general was good for the economy and the country. But in mid-spring the price of gasoline turned around and began, slightly, to fall. The response has been immediate.

For the first time in more than two years, since the shortages and gasoline lines of early 1979, Americans' use of gasoline is now running significantly higher than a year earlier. The nationwide average price was $1.388 per gallon in March. Two months later it had sagged to $1.370 - just as the summer driving season began. In the Washington metropolitan area, a survey showed an average price of $1.442 in late April. On June 29 it was $1.428.

If those prices are adjusted for inflation, it appears that the drop was 2 or 3 percent around the country. In response, gasoline use is currently up about 2 percent compared with June of last year.

This is another demonstration that the U.S. thirst for gasoline is sensitive to the price - and not to much else. The evidence of the last decade is clear. Introducing more

The great value of the shift to small cars is that it has enabled people to accommodate rapidly rising fuel prices without deep disruption of their daily lives. But just as in the days when gasoline was cheap, a drop in prices means that people will drive more.

Total U.S. use of oil and total oil imports have both dropped sharply since the last crisis. That one began with the Iranian revolution and imposed on America first the shortages, then a surge of inflation, then a recession. The United States still depends on imports for one-third of its oil, and is still deeply vulnerable to foreign disruption. The present drop in prices at the filling station has only one cause - Saudi Arabia's current oil production policy - and that could change at any moment.

It would be unspeakably foolish to allow this temporary surplus in world oil markets to reverse the progress toward conservation. A competent energy policy would impose a gasoline tax to keep drivers cautious. But on the subject of energy, the administration merely smiles and puts its trust in the world market. That means letting the Saudi government make energy policy for Americans.

International Opinion

On the Riots in Britain

Southall is not Toxteth. Nor is it Brixton. There is a great danger in lumping together the incidents under the label "race riots" which have little in common but the obvious presence of blacks and Asians among the violent participants. The artificial manufacturing of a "race problem" in England can benefit only the bullies, the extremists and the mischievous who make political capital out of disorder.

-From The Times (London).

The scenes in Toxteth immediately call to mind images of Belfast and Londonderry ---images that are now, alas, so familiar as hardly to warrant pictures in the newspapers or on television. Like Northern Ireland, this is a problem that is not going to be solved by well-meaning committees of inquiry, or localized initiatives. If it is not attacked at source, it will continue to erupt in an escalating spiral of violence.

- From The Guardian (London).

The use of the Molotov cocktail can now be introduced within hours of trouble occurring. That suggests a degree of pre-planning. If this trend persists, the police will have to be better equipped to deal with it. In France the police use water hose and tear gas. - From the Financial Times (London).

Europe might not be so prone to criticize if the newspapers did not always present the evil side of life more brilliantly than the good side. WASHINGTON - A vigorous campaign for world disarmament is to be the next international move by the United States government, it was learned today. It was stated that the success of President Hoover's proposal for a war-debts holiday had encouraged the government to plan an equally intense movement for reduction of world armaments. It is understood that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who landed in Naples today on his European tour, will ascertain the prospects for success for the world disarmament conference in Geneva next February. It is pointed out that President Hoover twice stated his belief that the competition in armaments was the root of the world's economic troubles.

How did Libya achieve what to outsiders looks like ratification of policies that are subversive in several member states? First, knowledgeable sources assume the Libyans were spreading around a lot of money. There is oo way to prove this, but it would fit the Libyan pattern to spend liberally from its overstuffed treasury of petrodollars to achieve its political goals. A gradual, quiet African consensus might yet lead the OAU to change its mind on Tripoli and the Qadhafi chairmanship, Some officials say that if enough African countries were to make their objections known to the OAU secretariat, a change could be made. VIENNA- -- Government approval of the sale of 57 light tanks to Argentina has split the ruling Socialist Party and triggered wide-spread public debate over whether this neutral nation should be involved in the weapons trade.

The government of Chancellor Bruno Kreisky supports such sales on grounds that they will reduce weapons-procurement costs for the Austrian armed forces through the economies of volume manufacturing while providing employment in the country's long-established $60million-a-year arms industry.

Critics contend that there are more morally acceptable ways to provide employment, and some even question the need for Austria to maintain armed forces.

They note that Austria lies wedged between the nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organiza-tion and those of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

"What could tiny Austria's small [37,000 men] armed force do if the two superpower alliances de-cide to go to war?" Josef Cap,

'Equality Wrong'

As for the sale of tanks to Ar-gentina, Mr. Cap said: "If it was wrong to sell tanks to Chile, it is equally wrong to sell them to Argentina. Argentina, like Chile, is a dictatorship that suppresses its own people. We hate to see Austrian weapons used for such pur-DOSCS.

The Kreisky government called off the deal with Chile at the last minute in the face of widespread protests from rank-and-file Socialists, church groups and others op-posed to the regime of President Augusto Pinochet.

"It would be a fundamental breach of the political and moral traditions of Austrian social democracy and damage the image of Austria in the Third World," the Young Socialists said at the time, a Gen. Hau Mei-ling, spokesman - concerning the deal with Argenti-said at a new second second

He made the same threat at the time of the Chilean tank deal. Mr. Prechtl declared that his union would prevent the vehicles, now in a warehouse near Vienna, from being shipped by rail to the Yugoslav coast, where they are to be placed aboard a freighter for the voyage to Argentina. Mr. Cap said the 40,000-mem-ber Socialist Youth movement would provide "moral support" to the effort to block the shipment. The government defends the sale to Argentina by saying that there are ample safeguards to prevent misuse of the tanks.

To allay fears that the weapons sold to Argentina might be used against citizens opposed to the government, Austrian officials said they had received assurances from Buenos Aires that the weapons would be employed only for national defense.

They also say that the tank is oot suitable for use during an insurrection. Critics of the sale, however, point to a widely circulated news photograph showing one of the vehicles being used by govern-ment troops crushing an uprising in Bolivia, which had purchased 34

PARIS — Beverley Cross, who collaborat-ed on "Lawrence of Arabia" and dug from H.G. Wells' novel "Kipps" a musical-comedy libretto for Tommy Steele, has now confected a scenario on the heroic exploits of Perseus, "Clash of the Titans." In this particular instance, classic literature has been attractively and smoothly translated to the screen

Antiquity's golden legends, some of exqui-site lyricism, some of hair-raising borror, are set before us in dazzling array to constitute a spectacle of grandeur and rousing derringdo. Ray Harryhausen's animation of mythological creatures is a prize achievement. Perseus' taming of the winged horse, Pegasus, and his mounting of his charger to soar into the vaulted blue; his combat with gigantic scorpions and his hideous rival, the deformed prince; his battling with the sea beast let loose from its ocean-deep prison; and his cunning encounter with the snake-baired Medusa as he avoids her death-dealing glance, watching her reflection in his shield giance, watching ner reflection in ins sinear for the opportunity to decapitate her, are striking images that will linger in memory. In them one perceives the neglected potentiali-ties of movie magic. The merit of this spectacular screen epic does not rest solely in Harryhausen's special effects, astonishing as they are. It has other specialties. The Cross script is no tabloid cartoon strip. It has not vulgarized the famous fables nor is it, on the other hand, too stiffly literary or absurdly bombastic, as, say, John Boorman's "Excalibur." It contains a stimulating theatrical vigor, as able in conveying thrills and shocks as the science-fiction "Star Furthermore, it has been shrewdly Wars." cast

The Olympus court is thronged with stars. Laurence Olivier is Zeus squabbling over the protection of his earthborn son, Perseus, with the goddesses: Hera (Claire Bloom), Thetis (Maggie Smith), Aphrodite (Ursula Andress) and Athena (Susan Fleetwood). Flora Robson, Anna Manahan and Freda Jackson are the cave-dwelling, cannibalistic witches who have but one eye between them, while in the role of Perseus shines a new star, Harry Hamlin of regal presence, commanding voice and athletic prowess. Burgess Meredith as his tutor proves an amiable companion, humorous and sagacious amid the terrifying adventures. ("Clash of the Titans" is at the Ermitage and the Danton in English.)

The Soviet film "Teheran 43" by Alexandre Alov and Vladimir Naoumov concerns a plot to shoot Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill when the Big Three met to confer in Iran as the tide of war turned.

It is designed in flashback fashion and opens in 1980, when secret documents relating to the conspiracy are up for auction in London. The negotiator of the proposed sale is kidnapped on a visit to New York, but escapes. The surviving terrorists engaged four decades ago by the Nazis for the triple assassination are in semi-retirement, but their old differences flare up again with threats of vengeance. From the disputes over the telltale papers, the attempted crime of Warld War II is reconstructed.

There are intrigues within intrigues, with i nere are mongues within intrighes, while treachery and danger on every shady alley corner in 1943 Tehran. There are enough chases, rescues and gunfights to stock a doz-en gangster movies in this bulging, lengthy thriller. There is often a lightning swiftness to its action, but its narrative tends to meander, wandering off to modern Paris and London. Its directors might have benefited from a study of Hitchcock's "Topaz," a shocker of like cut, style and purpose, but one better oreanized.

Natacha Belokhvostikova, Igor Kostolevsky, Armen Djigarkhanoan and Albert Filozov are among the Russian participants, while Alain Delon as a contemporary French policeman, Curt Jurgens as the auctioneer, Claude Jade and Mike Marshall join them in the far-flung traffic of this espionage melo-drama, which suggests that it has its roots in history. (It is to be seen, in French, at the Berlitz, the Quintette and the Montparnasse Pathe.)

"Messaline, Imperatirce et Putain" is an Italian product, adequately criticized by its own title. Of soft-porn manufacture, it was probably inspired by the box-office rewards of the ridiculous "Caligula" and, like its in-spiration, seeks to shake down the prurient with an exposé of imperial Rome's decadence in terms of an especially sleazy burlesque show.

The wanton empress throws orgies in every other episode, selecting her lovers from among street riffraff and indulging in sapphic gymnastics to boot, while her booby hus-band, the tongue-tied Claudius, gives a very band, the tongue-tied Claudius, gives a very bad imitation of Ukulele Ike's stuttering rou-time. The tonic bloodbath is too long delayed and the acting atrocious, even that of the usually reliable Thomas Millian, who goes straight ham in the part of a filthy tavern roisterer. ("Messaline," dubbed into French, is at the Ermitage, the Miramar and the Maxeville, among others.)

He was with Charlie Parker (along with Max Roach, Curley Russell and Red in London and elsewhere as a theater director. But it was not Wood who em-Rodney) for six months, though

Nor is it just visually inap-propriate. It is theatrically and musically inappropriate, teading to dwarf the singers, the action and even the music. The impression left by this premiere was of a "Don Giovanni" being performed by pygmies, insufficiently illumid and even undervoiced. With a cast headed by Ruggero

Raimondi in the title role, with Gundula Janowitz as Donna Anna, Kiri Te Kanawa as Donna Elvira and Stuart Burrows as Don Ottavio, and with Colin Davis as the conductor, such mischief takes some doing. There were redeeming individuaccomplishments, most notably Burrows, whose singing of "II mio tesoro" prompted and earned the ovation of the evening. There was Te Kanawa's radiantly voiced "Mi tradi" and an immaculately sustained "Noo mi dir" by anowitz. A wonderfully mocking screnade by Raimondi made up for the prestissimo shambles he had previously made of the "cham-

Rembrandt Draws A Record £300,000

The Associated Press L ONDON — A Los Angeles art dealer bought Rembrandt's "Study of a Nude Woman as Cleo-patra" Tuesday for the J.P. Getty Museum in Malibu, Calif., for £300,000 (about $573,000), plus commission, a record price for a Rembrandt drawing, a Christie's pokesman said.

The red and white chalk drawing on cream paper measures 9 by 5¼ inches (24.8 by 13.7 centimeters). The previous record for a Rembrandt drawing was £190,000. Also Tuesday, at Sotheby's, a German glass goblet and cover dating from the end of the 17th century fetched £85,000, a record price far a piece of European glass.

Fight Crier With Crier,

Study Says From Agency Duspa

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - Tired 1 of staying up all night with a baby who won't quit crying? Social psychologists Russell D. Clark 3d of Florida State University in Tallahassee and Grace B. Martin of Armstong State College in Savannah, Ga., think they may have found a sure-fire way to dry up those tears: Just play a tape recording of the baby's own crying.

The psychologists said they stumbled on the solution while conducting research into why people become upset when they are around others who are upset.

"The implications are enor-mous." Clark said Tuesday. "11's incredible that an infant as young as 20 hours can discriminate his own cry from that of anniher, es-pecially when most adults don't when most adults dan't recognize their own voices on tape. We believe the findings prove babies are more sophisticated and complex than we ever could have imagined."

Clark and Martin were trying to find out if sympathetic distress is a learned or an innate response. The two tested about 80 babies less than 36 hours old.

The researchers recorded differ-ent infants at a Savannah hospital last summer, then played the tapes to babies who were calm and to those who were already crying. The results supported the theory that sympathetic distress response is innate; the babies cried when they heard another baby cry and infants who were already crying cried even more. Clark and Martin expected this response — but they were surprised to find that babies who heard their own wails played back on the tape recorders immediately stopped crying, and stayed quiet after the tape was stopped.

"It was obvious they recognized their own voices," Clark said. "How they do it is the $64 ques-tion." He said he consulted other psychologists, pediatricians and experts in hearing, and nobody could explain it.

BP in W. German Coal Liquefaction Venture - Reidens

BONN — Deutsch BP's Gelsenberg subsidiary and West German coal producer Saarbergwerke said Tuesday that they plan to build a coal figuefaction plant to produce almost 1 million metric tons of gasoline a year, about 5 percent of West Germany's needs.

Construction of the 3-billion-Deutsche-mark plant in the Southern state of Saarland will begin around 1984 if a pilot project proves satisfac-tory, a site can be found and official approval is obtained. The compa-nies said Deutsche BP is a unit of British Petroleum Co.

The plant would probably go into operation between 1988 and 1990 and would use 2.3 million metric tons of hard coal a year. The price of the gasoline would be 50 pfennings to 60 pfennings more per liter than current gasoline pump prices of 1.44 to 1.49 DM.

GM Cuts Estimate for Auto Market Growth

NEW YORK - General Motors has reduced its projection for growth in total U.S. antomobile sales between 1980 and 1985 to 2 percent a year from 3 percent, Vice Chairman Howard H. Kehrl told securities analysts Tuesday. GM President F. James McDonald said although the leading U.S. sees some shrinking in the car market in coming years it hopes to increase its own market share.

The comments came a day after the top three U.S. automakers - GM, Ford and Chrysler - reported that oew-car sales fell 4.6 percent in the last 10 days of June from a year earlier to the lowest daily rate since 1958, while sales of imports rose to record levels. Big Three sales for all of June were off 1.3 percent.

IBM Loses Round in EEC Antitrust Case

International Herald Tribune

BRUSSELS - International Business Machines, the giant U.S. computer maker, failed Tuesday in its attempt to have the European Court of Justice suspend EEC antitrust proceedings against IBM pending the outcome of the company's court action against the EEC commission. The commission, the EEC's antitrust anthority, alleges that the company has abused a dominant position in the European market as a result of its software-supply policy. IBM claimed that the EEC complaints against it were not clear enough and that procedural irregularities ren-dered the antitrust case invalid.

The court rejected IBM's request to halt all further action on the case until its own complaints had been heard. The company now has until Ang. 31 to reply formally to the so-called statement of objections, a 1,000-page document that lists the commission allegations.

Toyota Cut Vehicle Production by 9%

TOKYO - Toyota Motor Co. has started reducing vehicle production from this month to a daily average of 12,600, down about 9 percent from June and about 8 percent from a year earlier, a spokesman said Tuesday.

He said the steps resulted from a decline in exports following agree-ments to curb Japanese car shipments to the U.S. and some European markets and from a slow recovery in the domestic market. Output may be cut further in August, he said.

Schering Sees Rise in '81 Turnover

Renders WEST BERLIN -- Schering expects 1981 group turnover to exceed 3.6 billion Deutsche marks, an increase of nearly 12 percent on last year, Managing Board Member Karl Otto Mittelscheid said Tuesday.

He told the annual meeting of the chemical and pharmaceuticals group that in the first five months of this year group turnover rose 18 percent from the year-earlier period to 1.66 billion DM while parent company sales increased 12.9 percent to 938 million DM.

Sumitomo Electric Plans EDR Share Issue

The issue will increase the company's capital to 26.5 billion yen ($160 million) from 25.3 billion.

in 1980 fell to £2.954 billion from £3.105 billion in the previous year. Despite the gloomy statistics, chairman Ian MacGregor predict-ed it would not be long before the company was making money. "If steel prices improve and market volumes do not fall away, and if BSC's success in improving predictivity end control continuer. productivity and costs continues with full cooperation, the measures New York Stock Exchange closed now in hand should result in a remixed Tuesday as an earliar rally turn to profitability in the not-too-distant future," he wrote in the anfaded amid continued concern about the interest rate outlook.

Market conditions were the main cause of BSC's higher losses, the report added, with British steel and last year falling to about 13 million tons, the lowest since 1951, from 14.2 million the previ-outpaced advances by a small mar-gin. Volume widened to 53.6 mil-lion shares from 44.5 million Monous year. BSC said the effects of the strike, which caused customers to turn to imported steel, left BSC with a sharply reduced domestic market share at the start of fiscal 1980-81.

This situation, combined with a dramatic decline in steel consumption and major over-supply in Enrope, produced a sharp drop in both steel prices and volume in the second and third quarters.

BSC was able to regain an estimated 52 percent of the U.K. market by the last quarter of 1980-81 against 54 percent before the steel strike started.

directors were meeting. The company asked for a halt in stock trading "pending an an-nouncement."

The announcement did oot come uotil after the close of the exchange, so Texasguif shares remained idle. The common stock, which traded as low as 18% in the last year, was 47 on Thursday, just before the long boliday weekend began. The stock reopened trading Wednesday with a jump of $7.50 a share.

Late last month Elf offered to pay $50 a share for the Texasguif common and $159.37 a share for the preferred. But Texasgulf, although several long meetings were held, did oot disclose its attitude toward the offer. It seems clear oow that the two companies were negotiating on new terms.

Elf-Aquitaine is 67 percent owned by the French government through its oil agency, Entreprise de Recherches et d'Activités Pêtrolierès, or ERAP.

Texasgulf, besides being a major sulfur producer, has interests in cadmium, copper, iron, lead, silver and zinc, along with oil and gas, soda ash, potash, phosphate and iron Almost 37 percent of Texasgulf's 71.7 mil-lico shares are owned by Canada Develop-ment Corp., 49-percent-owned by the Canadian government. CDC will not sell its hold-ing to Elf under the terms of the offer, so Elf will actually be purchasing the remaining 63 percent of the common stock plus all of the 1.2 million outstanding preferred shares.

On June 26, in a related development, CDC purchased from Elf 10.6 million shares, or 49 percent, of Aquitaine of Canada. CDC is expected to purchase 5.56 million more shares next month.

These two transactions, at $61.65 a share, will total nearly $1 billioo in cash. Elf plans to use at least the $651 million raised in the first sale to help pay for Texasgulf stock.

In a separate phase of the venture, after the Texasgulf purchase is completed, an agreement between Elf and CDC provides for the Canadian company to swap its hold-ing in Texasgulf for Texasgulf's Canadian operations.

In the negotiations, Salomon Brothers acted as financial adviser to Elf while Mor-gan Stanley represented Texasgulf. Elf said that, although the French government has long held more than 50 percent of the com-pany's stock, it "enjoys a great deal of au-Rokusuke Tanaka said Tuesday. He told reporters the govern-ment's original estimate of a $6-hillioo deficit for the year will have to be altered because of active exports and a slowdown in imports.

Because of the yea's heavy depreciation against the dollar, Japanese exports in the first five months of 1981 were 27.7 percent above the year-ago period, Mr. Tanaka said.

As a result, the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission ob-tained an administrative law judge's ruling that the bank should be barred from U.S. commodity futures markets. A commission spokesman said Monday the case was still being litigated. The suit filed Monday was the first public indication of the identity of at least one of those chents. Officials of the Berne-based bank could not be reached for comment on the suit.

Mr. Fustok's name surfaced in 1980 as one of four Arab investors who, with Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt, offered to sell bonds backed by about $3 billion of silver they owned. Most analysts still say inflation this year will be well below last year's 12.4 percent for consumer prices and 11.8 percent at the wholesale level. But they also say increases at about half that rate in the past few seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in June — slightly above May's 0.4 percent but still the second-best mon the will not last.

Moderation in the first five months of this year in the inflation rates for consumer goods and wholesale products and materials rate of 9.5 percent for the first half of the year — well under last year's was due mostly to a lack of big new price increases for oil and food, analysts agree.

BRIDGE

EXPLAINING how to bid against a weak-two opening is one of the easiest tasks for a bridge teacher. "Bid as you would against a one-bid," he can say, "but with a small pinch of caution since you are a level higher than usual."

A descriptive overcall of one notrump is usually preferable to a takeour double. This is also true at the two-level, as the diagramed example shows. A bid of two no-trump over two spades makes life easy for North; s takeout double leaves him groping.

South must show good technique to bring home nine tricks, and the win-ning procedure was described in an issue of Popular Bridge by Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles. From South's angle, it is very likely that East has six spades and West six diamonds. He holds up his are for a round, and West continues with the jack, establishing his suit. South can see eight tricks, and has to hope that

One chance is that East began with three hearts, including the gneen. If he can be induced to take a trick with that card, the last heart in the closef hand can be established without allowing West to gain the lead.

South can feel sure that East is left with six spades headed by the ace and, one other card. If that other card is the heart queen, a heart lead will give the declarer an overtrick. But as the cards lie. West will laugh hearthy, and South will make no more tricks. South therefore uses club entries to dummy to lead hearts twice. To lead top honors from the closed hand would permit in unblock. When the jack appears on his right, he wins and reaches this position:

The Soccer Scene

Street Smarts: The Enduring Asset

By Rob Hughes International Herald Tribune LONDON - Where have all the talents gone? Blown with culture, every one, ... If there is one question that dominates soccer, it is the lack of naturally gifted players. We have suggested they are squeezed out by automative ap-proaches, by team coaches who impose a set rhythm and method. We have heard that money has made players overcautious, afraid to make a slip might cost thou-sands of dollars. We are told that this money, too much too soon, impairs players' will to work hard and long at self-

We know that, since soccer became a business instead of a game, players have sacrificed individual- footed shot or of Pele's soaring ism; that victory is all, and so enjoyment is ruined.

Finally, the coaches would have us believe that the game is better, that standards of defense are now so sophisticated that the brilliant forward of yesteryear would oot flourish today. That's progress?

Unacceptable

Thus do we see soccer going in contradiction to tennis and gymnastics, which pluck prospective talents almost out of the cradle and systematically drive growing bodies through intensive training intended to get them to the Olym-pics and Wimbledon at 14.

It's time we all focus on the future and on our obligations to the public and to the people who don't play baseball but who depend on baseball for their livelisessions confined to "head soccer Citing the critical situation faced by baseball, Williams said be to assume the responsibilities of team play, individual technique was already ingrained. hoped the executive board of the

Little Doubt

Can we doubt that a boy, or a man, who lacks those depths of two-footed control will oot have the confidence to attack a defender as Matthews did? Or to blossom excitingly into a star within a team?

Speak to the outstanding English players of the '50s, speak to Jackie Milburn, uncle of Bobby Charlton and in his own right a great center-forward for Newcastle United. "Wor" Jackie will tell you what Sandor Barcs has; that his crowded village street was "soccerdaft." That control was boned kicking a rubber ball the size of a tennis ball against the coalhouse door and mastering the returns from all angles at all daylight hours.

Love of the game and of being able to respond spontaneously is what Milburn and Barcs had in common. They both now acknowledge that, without poverty, without the omnipotence of soccer played in adolescence, boys must be taught the "thousands of little tricks" that came naturally in cobbled streets.

Disadvantage

Hungary, says Barcs, is at a disadvantage. The state expects soccer to regenerate itself without financial support and, while school teachers can earn second salaries coaching volleyball, swimming or gymnastics, there is no budget for occer.

"And no parents want their child to be a soccer star," adds Barcs, "because the best players in Hungary earn less than artists, physicians or directors of cooperatives."

So whether they are paid too much or too little, the pros today lack the background of improvisa tion that spawned the game's growth around the world. That, one suspects, is the reason Brazil, with its huge population and its sprawling shantytowns is still ca-pable of finding abundent individuals. The only "problem" Brazil has is to blend them into a team.

McEnroe Wears a Thorny Crown

The International Tennis Council is due to meet during the U.S. Open Championships in September to study reports from the All-England Club on the court behavior of the rebel champion. If the club's recommendations are approved McEn-roe will be fined a total of $14,500 and will be liable to suspension for up to a year. The council is not expected to take such extreme action. And McEnroe will certainly not miss the U.S. Open, which he has won for the last two years, because the unit will oot meet before then. ·

Spluttering

McEnroe, 22, made history by bearing Bjorn Borg, 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-4, in Saturday's final, ending the Swedish star's five-year reign. But on the way to the final he did things that caused members of the highly respectable All-England Club to splutter into their teacups.

In three matches, two singles and a doubles, McEnroe was censured for arguing over line calls and abusing officials. He stormed ont of a press confer-ence after being asked a ques-tion about his girl friend Stacy Margolin; it sparked a fight between two reporters.

McEnroe admitted it was wrong for him to have acted as he did in his first-round victory over Tom Gullikson. "I deserved to get fined in the first match for the obscenity, or whatever," he said. "Which no one heard, by the way. All of the other stuff is Under baseball rules, a request by three owners is required to get a meeting of all 26 owners. The owners' oegotiating leaders had resisted such a meeting because they felt the players would perceive it as a sign of weakness among the owners and because they feared that some of the more outspoken owners might unduly influence the more moderate and newer owners. Moses laughed. When he makes a little joke — on himself or somesounding like a braggart, he lets out a short, deep laugh.

"Winning is the important thing," he said. "That's why I have a streak. If I win in 52 seconds, it's the same as winning in 47. If the race is close, it's better for the event. If I win by I0 meters, people say, Well, what do you expect?" This way, there's a little excite-ment." He laughed again. .

The Record

When Moses runs, there is history as well as excitement. He was clocked at 47.59 seconds, the sixth fastest time ever. When the racefinished, the 49-second barrier had been broken 154 times by 23 race runners. Moses has had 59 of those sub-49 performances. He had also run the 10 fastest times ever, 15 of the top 20 and 30 of the top 50.

Starting with the 1976 Olympics final, he has broken the world in the Line times, most recently last July 3, in 47.13, in Milan.

He has been ranked No. 1 in the world in his event every year since 1976: Track and Field News maked him the sport's outstanding athlete last year despite his ab-scace from the Olympics because of the U.S. boycott.

Moses ranks with Jesse Owens, Jun Thorpe and a handful of others as the greatest athletes in the long history of this sport. Yet field barely know his name.

Big Honcho Rancho

By Russell Baker

Page 12

NTEW YORK - The center of N the fabulous Reagan ranch is the big house where Nancy and the boss live. That's it over there, sort of hunkered down in the shelter of those hig gray buildings with the big old trees all around it.

You've probably seen it on television when the boss comes out the back door to get on his helicopter and does that graceful walk where he looks hackward and waves and smiles all the time he's 1 walking forward to get on the helicopter. The fore-Baker men work in there, too. The boss has three of them. Ed and Bob and Mike.

You've probably seen Ed on TV. Ed Meese, that is. A sweet guy, Big blond fellow with a nice little smile, but don't let that smile fool you. Ed's got his eye on everything happens on this ranch.

Like the old mill up there on the hill. See it there? The place with the antique dome. That didn't used to go with the ranch until the boss took over here. It's got two big rooms they call the Senate and the House, but what with the way the boss has been consolidating things on the ranch since he got here I wouldn't be surprised to see him change the names before long.

Some folks say he ought to call them Studio One and Studio Two. Of course he got the Senate lock, stock and barrel when he took over the big house, but it took him a while to get possession of the House. You hear that bellowing?

That's just old Tip. The boss has got him caged up now, but it took a piece of doing. Old Tip bellowed and snorted and roared all over up there like he was going to gore the liver and lights ont of the boss if he tried to lay hands on the property.

Since the boss fixed him, though, be ain't nothing but hot air. All the boss had to do was to have a bunch of the hands down to the big house and massage them real good. You know. A little carrot to make them smile and then a whack on the rump to make them see the light of reason.

Speaking of locked up, see that big shed way out on the east forty there? Looks like some blow-thebankroll New Dealer bought a Greek temple and had it moved onto the ranch at taxpayer's expense? Well, that didn't used to go with the ranch either.

Supreme Court, they called it in these parts. Still do, though I wouldn't be surprised if we didn't change the name there, too. Call it The Screening Room, maybe. ft pretty much belongs to the boss already, but he's going to get full title to it in a few weeks.

Nothing in there but nine old men and the boss has the rights to replace them as they drop off. He's already named a woman to replace the first one,

Now, down there in the low ground — right marshy down there — you got the big corrals and the bunkhouses. That's where the boss keeps the gunslingers and the slick talkers. The gunslingers' job is to make war and the slick talkers are supposed to come up with a for-eign policy that will make sure the wars don't get too big to handle.

The boss is going to get the slick talkers all up to the big house one of these days and invent a foreign policy to help hold the wars down. Once we get the ranch all con-solidated and fenced in, the boss will get around to that. Speaking of fenced in, that barbed wire enclosure over there is where they make the Democrats stand baying and bawling while Dave Stockman soaks the poor.

By Suzanne Daley

Gwen Verdon

New York Times Service NEW YORK - The coach stands in the first row of the darkened Ambassador Theater as three young dancers on stage practice a number from the show "Dancin"." She stops them after a few steps. "Do that like you're in the Army," she calls out. They start over. Soon she interrupts them again.

"You're a 9-month-old baby girl who's a flirt," she says. "You're just a little fat girl showing off your underwear, ft's that kind of step." The coach is Gwen Verdon and as she conjures up images for each step, occasionally adjusting the angle of an arm or the tilt of a hip, the effect is startling. The skinny dancers begin to look like toddlers or, when she wants them to, soldiers.

"You've got to find an image that works for you or you'll just be a dancer, and that's not what it's all about," Verdon says.

At 56 she still has the shapely body that danced so magnificently on Broadway in "Can-Can," "Dann Yankees" and "Red-head." She has won four Tony awards and many would argue that she was Broadway's greatest dancer. But, though she practices every day, she would no longer consider doing a Broadway musical. "Oh, I can still dance," she said. "But I can't dance for four minutes of a dance. There's no use working on technique. That boat left the dock a long time ago." Dancers, she said, die twice: the first time when they realize they are no longer the ath-letes they were. But with a shrug and a defiant shake of her head she has faced the fact that her legs don't move like they used to and she has turned her attention to new projects. Since her last Broadway musical, "Chica-go," closed in 1977, Verdon has tried ber hand at producing, putting together an ab-breviated version of "The Nuteracker" at the John Drew Theater on Long Island. She has toured with the national company of "Dancin" — a show her estranged husband, Bob Fosse, created — recruiting dancers, teaching numbers and keeping the show honed. She has also been an off-and-on consultant to the show in New York.

China Tour, TV Role

This summer she will accompany Ben Ste-venson, artistic director of the Houston Bal-let, on a teaching and performing tour of six cities in China. In the fall she will appear in an episode of television's "M*A*S*H" as an aging USO entertainer. Verdon sat at the table in the dining room of her Central Bark West perturbutes.

of her Central Park West penthouse. The room is sparsely furnished with oak antiques. In one corner is a desk with a sewing ma-chine on it. On the walls are pen and ink drawings that her second child, Nicole Fosse, did several years ago. Verdon and Fosse have been separated for 10 years.

There is no sign that the woman who has lived in the apartment for more than 20 years has spent most of her adult life performing the build, so, without telling her, the pro-ducers simply changed it. She turned up on the program as Gwen. Discouraged and irus-trated, she gave her notice and arranged to leave after a four-week run.

On opening night, however, after she had danced her second number and was in her dressing room, a chant came up from the house. "We want Verdon!" they should, and they would not stop until she was brought back to the stage, wrapped in a towel, to take a solo bow.

"I guess I really only figured it out in the last five years," she said. "I think the audience, as Americans, were going to root for the underdog. I was the underdog and they were determined not just for me, but because [they] feit cheated that they had never gotten to appland, you know, that little girl.

"Lilo was so hurt. It must have been awful. I can't imagine what that's like. You see, she was French, and in France at that time, if you were the star, nobody else had a big part. She couldn't understand."

Corrective Shoes

Verdon had rickets when she was growing up in Culver City, Calif. The disease made it necessary for her to wear corrective shoes, but she danced anyway. At 17, she married James Henaghan, a Hollywood reporter, and the next year her first child, James, was born. "I thought being married meant doing the laundry," she said. "I mean, what do you know when you're that age?" The marriage didn't last long.

One day a critic she had met asked her to review the opening of a nightelub show star-ring Jack Cole's dance troupe. After the show, instead of writing the review, she asked Cole if she could audition for him.

She worked for him for six years, dancing in his troppe and helping teach movie stars to dance. When Michael Kidd asked her to andition for "Can-Can," she flew to New York on what she considered a lark and landed the on what the considered a life and inhered the part. Her Broadway carete began. When "Can-Can" closed, Verdon was cast for "Damn Yankees." Although the had met the choreographer. Fosse, it was the first time she had worked with him. That year they considered and him. That year

On Jan. 26, 1977, George Meegan started walking north from Ushusia, Argentina, at the tip of South America. His goal was the northernmost tip of the Americas, in Alaska. The 28-year-old Englishman has reached New York, where he explained why he was making the journey. He said he wants to follow in the footsteps of earlier British adventurers who took "often bizarre, often unnecessary journeys." He looked in his stias to see what hadn't been done before, he added, and the idea of walking the length of the Americas fairly lesped from the map. He has used up much of his savings, but he said he has been given food, shelter and money by people along the way: "People are so generous once they find out what I'm doing," Meegan said. "They be-come interested and excited. It's as if I'm living out other people's dreams." He said there had been many offers of rides but he had no trouble turning them down. "To cheat in any way," he said, "would destroy the whole purpose of the journey."
